THE CAT'S WHISKERS ✓

The beauty parlor curls the whiskers of a fastidious cat. The cat, the job, after having viewed it in a mirror, leaves and getting away. He keeps going until he comes to a trough, where he waters. At the same time a tiny cat is trying to do the rope stunts of Will Rogers, where his sister and her sweetie are warming the sofa, a tiny kitten enters. He receives a nickel and is told to clear out. Out of the window he jumps and tells the news to little Will Rogers. He goes in and receives his nickel. On coming out, five more little brothers are told the glad tidings and into the house they go where the lovers are seeking privacy. Seeing them, the big cat shouts, "Let's sit in the park, it's cheaper." The kids yell "Hooray" as the lovers go and get on the see-saw. One little kitten says, "Last one off is a nigger baby" and off they run, leap frogging all the way to the waters edge. On the spring board they run and then off into the water. The lovers on the see-saw are contented and happy, until the maiden, looking about her sees the much becurled cat in his car. She leaves very suddenly, one end of the plank goes up and her beau lands on his head. He brokenheartedly holds out his arms and cries. The fickle girl and her wealthy lover drive off to the bank of the lake where the little brothers are swimming. The kittens are having a great time, but they swim out too far and one of them is caught by a huge fish. The others get away and cries of "Help! Help!" are heard by the sister and her lover in the motor car. She sees what is happening and frantically tells her companion to save the baby brother. But before he can pluck up courage enough to jump in, the abandoned lover has heard the cries. He runs up to the lake, passes them without saying a word and dives off into the water. He rescues the kitten and the others scream and yell as he swims ashore and turns the victim over to the sister. Leaving hastily he goes to the shelter of a big tree. The kittens follow and to show their esteem they offer him their nickles back. But seeing it is not money he wishes, they run away and return with their sister, whose hand they join with the hero's. Then all is happiness and the sister realizes that "They are rich who have true friends."
